WHERE WILL MUMBAI'S REALTY MARKET BE IN 7 YEARS?

Mumbai will continue to grow, but what are the risk factors holding it back?

Mumbai is sometimes known as the 'Maximum City', a dynamic metropolis that is always growing. The city alone contributes to around 5% of India's total GDP, in part because of its perceived position as the financial capital of India. Whilst Banking, Finance, Insurance and Professional Services are the major sectors of growth, the Shipping, Manufacturing, Pharmaceuticals, Media and Entertainment sectors are also prominent contributors to the city's success. Looking ahead, what are the factors which will drive growth over the next seven years. Given these drivers, Mumbai will generate further employment within prominent growth sectors, such as Pharmaceuticals, Research and Development, Retail, Media and Entertainment. The greatest hope is for Mumbai to become like Shanghai in terms of having excellent infrastructure attracting multinational companies. The reality is, this won't be achieved within the 2020 time frame, although through investment and implementation, we could now see this dream become a reality in the not-too-distant future. The worry for Mumbai is that it may be surpassed by other Asian cities in an increasingly competitive market. Cities such as Delhi and Chennai are increasingly competing with Mumbai. Infrastructure investment and other upgrade programs have resulted in some operations moving away from Mumbai. Delhi puts in place a 10-year plan and is clearly making progress whilst Bangalore is coming up strongly too. Mumbai is losing Shipping and back-end Financial jobs to Chennai, and even the townships around Mumbai are benefiting from the migration from the City centre. How will this tip the scales? Fortunately, the city's gravitational pull will remain strong over the next seven years, although the city will be increasingly challenged and it will become imperative to proactively fulfill the needs of its citizens. Mumbai will remain the gateway to India, and with India representing such an influential slice of the Asia Pacific (APAC) pie, it will undoubtedly remain as a mainstay of the APAC region. Outlook: India is more self-sustaining than any of the other BRIC economies. It's driven by its own consumption, not exports nor foreign investment, and therefore, resilient to externalities. Mumbai is a key entry point to this massive market. India's demographics are astonishing. It has been calculated that by 2050, India's workforce will be virtually as big as America's and China's combined. Before then, perhaps as early as 2030, India will be the world's third biggest economy. These are irresistible facts. International occupiers and investors will have to position themselves to take advantage of India's huge internal market; they have no choice. The question is when? The government has clearly stepped up the reforms. Passing the new Land Acquisition Bill and Real Estate Authority Bill has indeed been helpful in India's march towards absolute transparency and has been one step closer to achieving a robust real estate market. The hope is that foreign direct investment (FDI) will arrive again sooner, rather than later. And, the linked hope is that deregulation will accelerate this timetable.

Shri Sankalchandji Jain (Sanghvi) with Wife Bhawarideviji

On his 50th wedding anniversary

Shri S.C. Jain and wife - golden memories

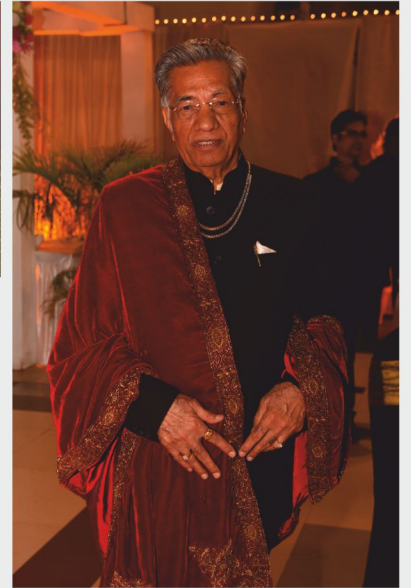

With a remarkable journey in corporate and social stratum, Shri Sankalchand Sanghvi not only excelled but marked a pathway of self-discipline and hardwork for others to follow.

Born on 15th August 1940 in Bhinmal (Rajasthan), Shri. S.C. Jain (Sanghvi) started his first entrepreneurial venture in real estate sector with Sanghvi Group of Companies. Earlier being in the steel business, Shri S. C Jain true interest always was in building homes. A strong believer in delivery and commitment, Shri Jain reached ladder of success in 1983 by starting his first independent entity - Sanghvi Builders (India) which constructed several housing projects and continues to enjoy trust and confidence of the home buyers.

Father Late Shri Sanghvi Chunnilalji Hemaji Tated and Mother Late Smt Subhadradevi Chunnilalji Tated

The vision was to provide quality homes and raise the standard of living in Mumbai. Owing to his intricate understanding of the changing trends in the real estate sector and his visionary outlook, Sanghvi Group has constructed exemplary projects in the last three decades in Mumbai, Suburbs, Nashik and Lonavla.

His work principle of timely delivery and commitment to his customers has led the Group to great heights. This award is a testimony to his consistent efforts in taking new initiatives in the sector. He identified the need of affordable housing and under his leadership Sanghvi Group has been perpetually engaged in providing qualitative affordable homes in order to bridge the vast gap between demand and supply.

In a bid to contribute for the betterment of the community in Mumbai, Sanghvi Group, while offering luxury living at an optimal value have also been committed in creating places of spiritual worship. The vision of this initiative was to inspire residents and reinstate moral values which are ultimately reflected in creating a holistic community living experience and thereby promoting brotherhood and harmony. The Group has built a series of temples which are adjoining or in close proximity to their residential projects.

Some prime places of religious importance built by the Group are the Jain, Ambe, Saibaba and Hanuman temple at Mira Road, the Saibaba and Ganesh temple at Kalyan, Jain temple at Andheri and the Shiv and Jain temple at Dombivli. The Saibaba temple at Mira Road known as Saidham is a particularly famous landmark and is considered as "Mini Shirdi" by its many devout worshippers. The temple sees more than a 1000 worshippers each day and over 20,000 worshippers on Thursdays. Also a clear highlight of having these temples located conveniently next to each individual property is seen especially during the festive and religious dates.

Mr. Jain's contribution to society is not only confined to setting up organizations but providing financial support to various charitable trusts, one being the initiative to start a Dharamshala – B.S.Sanghvi Bhavan at Palitana, his native pilgrim place. Shri S.C.Jain is one the founding members of the prestigious Jain International Trade Organization and Vice chairman of JITO's newly formed Byculla chapter.

Apart from the many religious initiatives Shri S.C Jain is a popular figure among the community owing to his generous ways and heartfelt interest. His devotion and dedication has earned him several accolades and awards from the community namely the 'Samaaj Ratna' in 2006 for his social commitment, to society and social work for over 25 years to the samaaj.

Besides, he is also one the founder members of the prestigious Jain International Trade Organization (JITO) through which he fulfilled his religious and corporate needs. He is also the chairman of 'Shree Jeevdaya Gaushala' - Bhinmal, Rajasthan. He also spearheaded 'Seema Jalayshay' – an initiative to provide water to the needy. He is also the President of the 'Byculla Bhinmal Jain Sangh' and the Vice-President of the 'Sumer Towers Jain Sangh' and 'Byculla Jain Sangh'. He also started a Charitable Trust named after the "Sanghvi Sankalchand Chunilalji Tated Family.

Shri S. C. Jain strongly believes that the only way to achieve true success is hard work, sincerity, patience and discipline coupled with a strong set of religious and spiritual values that serve as a strong point of shaping one's conduct and moral obligation towards the larger community. The basic reason which elevated Shri. S.C Jain to this prominent position is his principle of 'Commitment and humanity' to society.
